This amazing spot is hidden behind a thick indigenous dry forest teeming with a vivid tapestry of life, including a variety of birds, cheeky vervet monkeys, and exquisite butterflies. In June 2018, Thimlich Ohinga earned the rare honour of being inscribed on UNESCO's renowned World Heritage List as a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The architectural marvel of the dry-stone walled enclosures found here is truly breathtaking, unlike anything seen anywhere else on the earth. Not only is it the largest of its type, but it is also immaculately kept, standing as a witness to the traditional enclosures that were once the trademark of the first pastoral villages in the Lake Victoria region, dating from the 16th to the mid-20th century.
